Health & Wellness Expo and Proclamation

ACA supports health and wellness in every way

Proclamation declares an annual staff wellness event be held at the Congress of Correction.

There was much-anticipated excitement that took place as ACA President Dr. Lanette Linthicum, M.D., and ACA Wellness Committee Chair Colette S. Peters cut the ribbon to open ACA’s Health & Wellness Expo. The ACA Wellness Committee hosted the three-day Champions for Life, Commit to Be Fit Health & Wellness Expo and, like last year’s expo, it was a tremendous success. The expo featured free health screenings, stress-reducing massages, exercise machines, healthy snacks, giveaways and a place to learn about the important intersection of wellness and corrections.

The Health & Wellness Expo not only showcased staff wellness products and giveaways, but they also presented a proclamation to uphold the health and wellness of corrections officers. Dr. Linthicum signed the proclamation stating, “Now, therefore, I Lannette Linthicum, M.D., 105th President of the American Correctional Association, do hereby declare that an annual staff wellness event be held at the Congress of Correction. I encourage all of corrections, both public and private, to support staff wellness in every way possible.”

Health and wellness continue to be an urgent concern that not only affects every area of the corrections field, but also families, communities and the country. ACA honors and wholeheartedly upholds this proclamation to support staff wellness.
